INTRODUCTION

(To 1903 Edition)

EZRA LEHMAN, PH.D.

President (1913-1931) Shippensburg State Teachers' College

This is the day of scientific investigation. The historian, no longer satisfied with the legends and stories that cluster about the men and women of other days, seeks to ascertain the facts of their careers, to know what manner of people they were in their private lives. Hence it comes that musty old records are being examined, the almost obliterated inscriptions on crumbling tombstones deciphered and private documents examined with scrupulous care.

The same method must be used in compiling the records of individual families if the results are to have permanent value. The compiler of this record has sought to give a reliable account of the family with which her work is concerned. She has made a careful examination of the records possessed by the various living representatives of the Stouffer family, and has used all other trustworthy sources of information.

No apology need be made for the presentation of such a work. Interest in one's ancestors is not only natural, but most commendable. We reproduce their lives in the inheritance they have handed down to us. A study of their characters and deeds is no more than a study of the pit whence we were digged or the rock whence we were hewn.

Many of the Stouffer family continue to dwell in those parts of the country settled by the first of the name in America, but there is scarcely a state nor territory where representatives are not to be found. The early emigrants who bore the name were persons of sincere convictions. They left their homes in the mother country because of religious persecution. It can justly be claimed that sincerity has ever been one of the characteristics of their descendants. Though some have held positions of trust and honor in the affairs of state, the majority because of religious convictions or from love of private life, have lived quiet, happy, useful lives in the retirement of their homes. If he be a philanthropist who "makes two blades of grass grow where but one grew before," these men were philanthropists indeed; for while some have sought professional or business careers, the greater number have always been identified with agricultural pursuits. Here their thrift, industry and intelligence are witnessed by broad acres and fertile fields.

Those who belong to this family will not find these statistics dry nor uninteresting. To them the names recorded on these pages will ever be incentives to a noble life. It is also hoped that this work may not be without interest to those of the larger world who realize that the real safety of a nation lies not in its armies and navies, but in the "quiet, well-ordered homes of its people," whence noble virtues spring.

For when

"The tumult and the shouting die,
The captains and the kings depart"

and the domestic virtues with obedience to law, truth to conviction, and purity of life, will remain as saving graces.

HISTORICAL

It may be proper and of some interest in the first place to trace the origin of the surname Stouffer. The root of the name is a very old German common noun Stauff, meaning a steep hill or cliff, also a tall cup, or beaker. According to heraldic records and historical accounts, it is derived from the latter meaning of the word; and with the masculine affix er, it signified a Cupper or a Cup-Bearer; and the name was given to an official common at that time in the retinue of every nobleman who was powerful enough to have a household of his own. This Stauffer was also the collector of tolls, taxes and whatever revenue his master might see fit to appropriate to his own use. As this position gave him influence and some authority, and enabled him to acquire a goodly income for himself, it was an office to be much desired. As noblemen were numerous in those days, and as each nobleman of old Swabia had his cup-bearer, there must have been many Stauffers in Switzerland, regarding the word as the title of an office only.

Family names, or rather family surnames, descending from father to son, did not appear in Europe until about the twelfth century; and in remote sections of the country many more decades elapsed before they were generally recognized. But when they began to regularly descend, each man, of the many official Stauffers, that had a family, gave rise to a family of Stauffers, all bearing the same name, but without blood relationship. This fact accounts for the great number of persons bearing that name in Switzerland at the present time, and they are especially numerous in the Canton of Berne. To which particular man of rank our own remote cup-bearer belonged, whether he was a Duke of Swabia, or a robber-knight, is a subject for conjecture only. It is sufficient for us to know that this is the most probable origin of the name as now applied to our family.

David McNeely Stauffer (1845 - 1913)

(Reprinted from 1903 edition)

Numerous Stouffer genealogists have dwelt at some length on the claim that we are descended from the Hohenstaufen dynasty, which furnished a number of emperors of Germany in the middle ages (1138 - 1254 A. D.) These rulers were men of outstanding character and achievements. The International Encyclopedia has this comment concerning them. "The emperors of this family rank among the ablest rulers of Germany and hold the first place in popular German tradition today (1903) just as they held the first place in the affections of the people during their lifetime. They appear in general as men possessed of great virtues, and of great faults, and impressive by reason of both. . . . Frederick II is one of the most remarkable figures of the Middle Ages, in his character as ruler, knight, scholar, and free thinker."

The thread connecting us with this family of emperors is an exceedingly slender one, and frayed besides, so it behooves us of the present generations to consider the possibility that royal blood flows in our veins less an occasion for pride of ancestry than a challenge to maintain in the conduct of our lives the high regard they commanded in their time and country.

The earliest ancestor of whom we have definite record, in an unbroken line, was Christian Stauffer, born in Switzerland in 1579. Victims of bitter religious as well as civil persecution, he and various members of his family were part of a group of almost seven hundred persons who fled to Germany in 1671. In "The Chronicles of Berne" by Ernest Muller, Pastor of Langnan, is found the record of a letter dated December 19, 1671 from the Baptists of Crefeld to the Baptists of Rotterdam asking for help for these refugees. This letter refers to Christian Stauffer, then 92 years of age, to his son Daniel with his wife and the eldest of their six children (the others having been left in Berne) and to other members of his family.

The diary of Hans Stauffer, one of Daniel's sons who had been left in Switzerland, contains the slender thread connecting us with the House of Hohenstaufen. Spanning the gap of four centuries with a single sentence he wrote of his father, "Daniel Stauffer, a descendant of the Ancient House of Hohenstaufen of Swabia, born about 1630, lived and died at Alsheim near the Rhine in Switzerland." The weak strand in this thread is the discrepancy between Hans' statement and the reference from Pastor Muller's record that Daniel was one of Christian's party in the exodus of 1671.

Continuing his personal history we find later in Hans' diary, "In the year 1709 I, Hans Stauffer, left my native land the Schweiz, on the fifth day of November, with my wife and children: Jacob 13 years; Daniel 12 years; Henry 9 years; Elizabeth with her husband Paulus Friedt and one child, Maria by name, with myself, eight." They arrived at Philadelphia in the spring of 1710, and settled in what is now Chester County near Valley Forge.

Early family records state that Hans' youngest son, Henry, settled in Lancaster County, married Magdalena Hess in 1735 and became the head of our branch of the family. Later studies however indicate another lineage.

Hans' brother, Daniel, born in 1660, whose wife was named Veronica, was one of the five children left in Berne at the time of the flight of the seven hundred in 1671. He later joined his father at Ibersheim, and took over part of the Mennonite Community farm there; just before his death in 1735, he advised his wife to move to Pennsylvania, where three of their sons had already gone.

Jacob Stauffer, a son of Daniel and Veronica, born in 1712, came to Pennsylvania in 1732 and in 1735 married Magdalena Hess. It was their son Abraham who moved to Chambersburg in 1792 and built the mill on the Falling Spring at Stoufferstown. This version of our ancestral lineage is confirmed by records of the Hess family, and is used in this volume.

EDITOR'S COMMENTS

The mass of detail involved in a work of this kind must be experienced to be fully appreciated. It has been a source of real gratification, throughout the two years in which the project has been active, to find so many of the cousins willing to aid in collecting the data. Their assistance has been vital to the success of the enterprise but so many have been interested that it is impracticable to mention by name all who have helped. We take this means of expressing our sincere appreciation to all who have contributed their time and effort.

We have quoted at some length from an article by Amos K. Stauffer of Lancaster, Pa., in the July 1932 issue of "The Perkiomen Region" published at Pennsburg, Pa. by the Historical and Natural Science Society of the Perkiomen Region, and have also made use of data contained in an account of our forebears by Mrs. Katherine Stauffer Krebs of Plainfield, N. J., written for the proceedings of the John Stauffer Memorial Association, published at Ringtown, Pa. in 1911.

"The Stricklers of Pennsylvania" published by the Strickler Reunion Association of Pennsylvania has been of assistance in compiling data for that branch of our family, and "The Price Family" published by George Wanger of Pottstown, Pa. in which we find nine points of contact with Stouffer descendants included in this work has been consulted in establishing communication with some distant cousins.

Miss Snively gives generous credit to Jacob Stouffer and his daily register over a period of forty years as making possible the memoranda she published. We would be remiss indeed should we not emphasize that her work in turn was a bulwark without which this volume would have been highly improbable, if not entirely impossible.

Although we show record of an ancestor one generation earlier than the earliest noted in Miss Snively's work, we have maintained the same numbering of the generations following, in an effort to reduce confusion and facilitate comparison of the two records. The system of numbering different families in any generation as well as the arrangement of successive generations of a family is followed exactly.

The plan that has been adopted of showing the occupation and location of heads of families, or others self supporting, is a compromise between making a mere list of names and dates on one hand, and giving elaborate biographical sketches of a few members of the family, as in some of the family records we have studied. The latter does, in fact, result in a far more complete and interesting volume but the work of collecting the additional data put it beyond the scope of our ambition for this effort. We have received complete sketches of a few of the cousins and submit the suggestion that the preparation of a supplementary work more biographical in nature, be taken up later by some one endowed with the means, the time and the inclination to follow such a hobby.

It will be recalled that the earlier volume included records of the families of four children, two sons and two daughters, of Abraham Stouffer, the original miller of Stoufferstown. In this volume we have limited our attention to the descendants of only one of the four—Jacob (1773-1843).

We have found no explanation of the change in spelling from Stauffer to Stouffer. It seems probable that on that memorable journey from Lancaster to Chambersburg in 1792 our great-great-grandfather, Abraham, dropped the "a" and picked up an "o" in its stead. Although habits of a century and a half standing are hard to change, there are numerous instances where later Stouffers have used the "a" spelling in middle names, and the view is frequently expressed that the original spelling might well be resumed.

It may be of interest too to note that Abraham's second son, also named Abraham, "moved to Canada; no record." He exemplified the characteristic family trait of strict adherence to ideals in this removal to Canada. It is stated that after the American Colonies had won their independence a number of Americans were dissatisfied with the results of the Revolution and with the form of government set up under our Constitution. They were known as the United Empire Loyalists, and being consistent in their belief, moved to Canada in order that they might continue under the English form of colonial rule. The town of Stouffville, directly north of Toronto, in the Province of Ontario, was named in honor of the Stouffer representative in this movement and his family. In 1918 one of Abraham's great-grandsons, then living in Toronto, published a brief survey of the family, listing over six hundred living descendants.

Students of vital statistics may be interested in the growth of our family. A survey covering the forty years intervening between Miss Snively's compilation and this work discloses that in that period 650 children were born, 328 boys, 322 girls. Without going into tiring detail, the number of births in any one year varied from four in 1916 to 24 in each of three years 1915, 1921, 1935, and 25 in the years 1926, 1927, 1941. Notwithstanding this practically even score between boys and girls, the list of 40 babies born in 1941 and 1942 and six in 1943 includes only three Stouffers and the index at the end of the book shows 146 Stouffers in a total of 1732 names.

The idea of featuring photographs of the newest arrivals is unusual in genealogical records. Our only defense is the feeling that it is better to look forward than backward; and it is intriguing at least to envision one of the youngsters whose photographs are shown as possibly being moved, years hence, to carry on such a record as we have tried to present here.
